

The data shows that with more and more elements added to a dynamic array, the performance time of DynamicArray increases at a much faster and much more significant rate than the performance time of DynamicArray2. This may be due to the fact that while DynamicArray makes a new array each time an element is added, DynamicArray2 only makes a new array at double the size only if there is no more room in it's array.